

Cepsa extends fuel discount to up to 30 cents per liter

- The measure takes place immediately and is not conditioned to next refueling or payment through an app
- The discount of 30 cents will be added to the promotions already offered by Cepsa through its loyalty programs
- The company will offer all users who do not use the 'Porque Tú Vuelves' program or Cepsa's professional cards a discount of 5 cents in addition to that established by the Spanish government, reaching a savings of 25 cents per liter

Cepsa is extending the discount on its fuels to up to 30 cents per liter. Customers of the company's loyalty program 'Porque Tú Vuelves' will obtain a discount of 30 cents per liter (20 cents from the Spanish government and 10 additional cents offered by the company). With this measure, not conditioned to any payment method or use of an app, Cepsa is widening its current promotions and discounts with additional savings to respond to an extraordinary moment.

With this additional measure, individual customers will be able to access savings of up to 48 cents/liter, which, with current prices in a conventional refueling of 35 liters, is equivalent to a discount of about €17.

Any individual customer can easily and immediately join the 'Porque Tú Vuelves' program, free of charge, through the company's website or at the point of sale when refueling. This program currently has more than 1.5 million users.

Carriers of Cepsa's professional cards can benefit from savings of up to 30 cents per liter, in addition to current commercial discounts.

Individual and professional customers who do not use the 'Porque Tú Vuelves' program or the professional cards will also obtain a discount beyond the amount established by the government. Specifically, these users will benefit from a discount of an additional 5 cents, reaching a saving of 25 cents per liter.

This measure will come into effect starting today, April 1, and will be in force until June 30, in a context of high fuel prices as a consequence of the increase in international raw materials prices.

None of the discounts are conditioned to next refuelings and all will be applied toward any type of fuel (gasolines, diesel, natural gas vehicles and liquefied gas) and accessible across Cepsa's network of service stations, with 1,500 establishments in Spain.
